About Noam Wasserman

Author, Professor

Noam Wasserman is the Jorge Paulo and Susanna Lemann Chair in Entrepreneurship and the founding director of the Founder Central initiative at the University of Southern California. Before returning home to Los Angeles, he was a professor at Harvard Business School for 13 years. His book, The Founder's Dilemmas: Anticipating and Avoiding the Pitfalls That Can Sink a Startup, was an Amazon #1 bestseller in Management, has spent more than half a decade on the Strategy bestseller list, and won the Academy of Management's annual Impact on Practice award. Noam created HBS's most popular entrepreneurship elective, "Founder's Dilemmas," for which he won the Faculty Teaching Award and the Academy of Management's annual Innovation in Entrepreneurship Pedagogy award.
